This description will be used by session proposal reviewers to evaluate your session. Please limit to 3,000 characters or less, including spaces. Be specific regarding the information you will cover, relevance to the AMCHP audience, impact on and implications for Title V programs, and the interactive communication/teaching methods you will employ. Keep in mind that this is not specifically a scientific conference – please do not format in terms of methods, results, etc. (unless you are submitting for a poster to present study results and consider this the best format to share your information). This description provides you the opportunity to describe to AMCHP reviewers what is relevant, impactful, cutting-edge, and otherwise important for the AMCHP conference audience about the work you want to present. Therefore as much as possible, focus on the experience/program/research, etc. you will talk about, limiting background information to that required to provide the context of your work. Your description should include an explanation of how your session relates to the conference theme of “The Power of Connections: Building Equity for Healthy Generations.” Please also address how your session relates to any tracks, MCH Leadership Competencies, National Performance Measures, and National Outcome Measures you select.
